Living the Gospel by Loving the Fatherless - The Ceasar's Story

Foster care has always been in the hearts of my wife and I. My wife Kimberly especially had a calling to foster. The Lord used her circumstances of being in the system to inspire her to give back by becoming a foster parent herself. I met my wife in 2014, as we started dating we established early in our relationship that we wanted to foster and adopt. A few years later, after having two girls of our own, we completed the foster parenting classes in 2019 and got our first placement in April of that year. Our boys Kamari and Brailyn fit perfectly in our home and we had the privilege of adopting our boys earlier this year in 2021!

Kamari and Brailyn have gone the last couple of summers to Raleigh's Place Camp 1:27. They love Raleigh's Place! They enjoy the leadership, activities, and overall care of Raleigh's Place. Kamari was even able to serve as a junior counselor this summer.

Although we have taken a break from fostering, we are very much still involved. I was asked to join the Raleigh's Place board and was happy to do so. My boys will continue going to Camp 1:27. We are grateful to be a part of a foster care community that is supportive and life-giving. We are living the life God created us to live!

End of the Year Giving

As we approach the end of the year, we pray that you will consider supporting us. Raleigh's Place provides many different services and programs to foster children and families. For us to continue Living the Gospel by Loving the Fatherless, we need our champions. 2022 will feature much change as we expand our foster home ministry and Camp 1:27 and open our transitional living apartments for foster youth aging out of care. As we increase our services to more and more foster children and families, we need volunteers, advocates, and generous givers. There are so many ways to partner with us in our mission to Live the Gospel by Loving the Fatherless. To give financially today, you can send a check to the address below or give online by visiting our website.
